RELEASED IN FULL

K: Hello?

W: This is Kurt Waldheim.

K: Kurt, how are you.

W: Good morning, Henry. I know you are leaving today, I wish you a good trip.

K: Thank you. I've written you a letter on that Korean business which you may or may not have gotten.

W: Well, I haven't got it yet, but I got your other letter, and I have already answered thanking you for your kindness and -- may be sure we will continue to coope ate fully so things will go well. Of course we have now this problem that the Egyptians apparently don't want--that I put something in my report to the Council about duration of the extension of the mandate in the Sinai. I sent the message to Fahmy because the Ambassador didn't get any instructions until yesterday evening and this morning he rang me up and said well... doesn't want to make any concrete proposal, so my solution is that I just say in regard to the question of the extension of the mandate.... Security Council.... th the early provisions on the... which is contained in Article 5.

K: Good.

W: I think this is perhaps the best way out of the dilemma, huh?

K: I think so.

W: Yeh, Henry, you have heard also from Allon about the talks here we had. They are apparently very interested in doing something about the prolongation of... end of November. They even suggested I should go over there to talk to Asad, etc. I told Allon that he should first discuss the matter with you, because ah...

K: I thought it was a good idea.

- W: I'm not sure what the outcome will be, but ..
- K: Well, it can't do any damage and it might do some good.
- W: Hmhuh. So you feel that it is justified to do it.
- K: Yes.
- W: The best then would be to do it around the middle of November-- not too early.
- K: I would let it develop for another two weeks or so.
- W: That was my feeling, we should wait for a certain time to see how things develop and then we can always decide . You will be back in the meantime...
- K: I'll be back on the 24th.
- W: Yeh, and we then can perhaps talk it over again, huh?
- K: Exactly.
- W: I just wanted to know in principle whether you feel it is a good idea to do it.
- KL I think it is a good idea.
- W: Good. Maybe I have to suggest I contact you again when you are back.
- K: I would appreciate it.
- W: And as far as the Korean question is concerned, I am waiting for your letter, you got from Moynihan the information about their idea to avoid parallel talks--that came after I wrote you ...
- K: You can tell them if they are willing to have the South Koreans present, I accept immediately.
- W: But to have parallel talks--because their explanation is we wanted to discuss the peace treaty which should replace the armistic agreement and future of the American forces--with the Americans alone--as far as the ~~the~~ future of the two Koreans is concerned, this should be discussed in parallel meetings between North and South Korea--this is about the position.

- K: Oh they want to discuss with us about the future of the armistice
- W: Right, right.
- K: Then they will talk parallel with the South Koreans.
- W: Right, about the future of Korean, the question of unification, they mentioned a confederation so that each country could have its administration, but to form a sort of confederation and this way..
- K: Let me look at this w again. I'll be in touch with you.
- W: See it was anew ...which the Vice Foreign Minister who is here for the Korean debate mentioned to me in a visit made two or three days ago. And I informed your mission here.
- K: No, I have that. All right. You'll be hearing from me about this in a few days.
- W: About the Western Sahara, I am deeply worried. I think if the Moroccans really starting this march, it can lead to a very serious situation.
- K: I am seeing their ambassador in a few minutes.
- W: Yeh, I do my best here, and in my contacts, I hope we can stop this kind of thing. It would be very dangerous.
- K: I agree.
- W: My best wishes for your trip.
- K: Many thanks, and we'll be in touch with each other when I return. Bye.
